If you've ever been buried under debt in your life, then you know what a struggle it is to dig yourself out. I've been there myself, and I consider myself still to be very much in debt. That's why I decided to build some tool to help myself visualize my debt so that I could better understand the impact and consequences of my purchasing habits.

You may find the following tools helpful to better understand your own debt. I've received alot of good feed back about these sites, so I'm sure there something here that may interest you. Check them out.

Days to Pay

80 Dollars - Fix your computer yourself!
